A screenshot of a software license configuration window titled "PRTG Network Monitor - Server Administration Tool". The window has a dark blue header with the "PAESSLER" logo on the left and "PRTG Network Monitor" on the right. Below the header is a navigation bar with tabs: "Web Server", "Core Server", "Cluster", "Memory Usage", "Administrator", "License" (which is selected), "Start/Stop", "Logs", and "About". The main content area is titled "Software License" and contains the following text: "A license consists of a name and a key, both of which must be entered exactly as provided. We suggest copying & pasting the information from the mail." followed by "First enter the name provided with the license information. For commercial licenses this is normally the company name as entered in the order form." Below this is a text input field labeled "License Name:" containing the text "John Q. Public". The next paragraph says: "Now enter the license key. The key consists of 10 groups of 6 letters and numbers separated by a dash. Make sure you copy the whole key, some email clients insert a line break separating the key." Below this is a text input field labeled "License Key:" containing "0000" followed by ten dashes and "408". The third field is labeled "Licensed Edition:" and contains "PRTG Network Monitor Site". At the bottom of the main content area is a blue "Check Key" button. At the very bottom of the window are "Ok" and "Cancel" buttons.
